The planet will not survive if industrialization continues the way it is going now. It is an unsustainable system, but were caught in it. It is fixable, though, so dont lose all hope just yet. There is a way to fix it that involves changing our way of thinking about industrialization. trend or, may it be said, a new development strategy, that is, sustainable industrialization which is characterized by more balanced and flexible economic and social development with greater international and regional integration and better ecological environment. Promote inclusive and sustainable industrialization and, by , significantly raise industrys share of employment and gross domestic product, in line with national circumstances, and double. The phrase sustainable industries is related to the development of industrial processes in a sustainable way. History. The earliest mention of the phrase "sustainable industries" appeared in in a story about a Japanese group reforesting a tropical forest to help . The world's least developed countries (LDCs) are the logical place to look for the emergence of more environmentally sustainable systems of production. Through their direct investments, according to David Wallace, western multinationals can play a major role in achieving this.

Industrialization is both the cause and the carrier of the industrial civilization. The industrialization process not only indicates the direction and depth of the industrial civilization evolvment but also reveals its spatial limitation and need for transformation. VIENNA, Sep 30 (IPS) - World leaders are recognizing the crucial role of industrialization in eliminating absolute poverty and promoting sustainable development. This was especially evident at the recent G20 Summit in Hangzhou, China, which I attended as a member of the delegation of the United Nations Secretary-General, Ban Ki-moon.
